New Year's resolution...

Have you made up a “New Year’s Resolution”? It’s not a bad idea. You can look at something you have been doing over the past years, that you are not happy with and fix it. The idea of a “New Year’s Resolution” sounds easy, but it is not. Coming up with a “New Year’s Resolution” and sticking with it, is the main part. If you make a “New Year’s Resolution” you really need to keep it. This is a promise to yourself, that you will not do, whatever it was, that you were doing wrong for the past year(s). I made some good ones that have changed my life. It is very productive and I would suggest everyone to make at least one “New Year’s Resolution”. Here are some tips to make your “New Year’s Resolution” successful...

1. Change or fix something that is really fixable. Set a goal that is reachable and honest.
2. Write it down, or type it out. Make sure you word it as if you were writing it down for someone else.
3. Set allowances. Make sure you understand what can interfere with your Resolution. That way if it does happen it doesn’t end your resolution, it just “pauses” it for a bit. Then you jump back on track.
4. Once you accomplish your goal, you can add or enhance it as you get stronger. When you stick with your resolution, you will find that you do get stronger and then you can add (little at a time) until you achieve your goal.

Going out with style... This year is going to end on a good note. That is for us at least. What better way to end the new year than by singing and praising the Lord. This year is going to end on Wednesday and we will be grateful to get to come to the house of the Lord for the last day of the year. Some people will be out at the bars, some will have to work, and others will spend their time praying and thanking God for what he has done in their life. I can't help but wonder why someone wouldn't want to be around family and/or people that love them. I know that there are many that will be very sad, but for the ones that are not sad and want to start their year out drinking or "partying" makes little since. This kind of activity is destructive and is a road to future sadness. That is why I am happy to say that we are blessed, to get to be in the house of the Lord, on the last day of 2014. Thank you Lord for a great year and we pray that you will guide us as we walk with you. Amen.
